Assignment 2

Incremental Model:

For the incremental model we would begin by laying out how exactly we want each aspect of the project to work and look and assign who is responsible for what component and what time we believe is appropriate to keep everyone on track. Then we could simultaneously work on creating the database, classes and methods, and the GUI with the ability to test and get feedback at any point either independently or integrated with other aspect of the project. We would continue to go through those actions until we believed that our project was completely ready and integrated at which point we would have our final version.
